Voice of Overseas and Independent Asset Managers on Japan Market

Tokyo International Financial Center Development Initiative

Social imperatives in Japan

Japan is confronting a number of factors which require a strengthening of its asset management capabilities.

- USD ~17 trillion of Japanese household assets
- ~52% of Japanese household assets (i.e., USD ~9 trillion) allocated to currency and deposits vis-à-vis ~14% in the US and ~24% in the UK
- Slow pace of private asset accumulation compared to other nations due to insufficient investment (value) chain development in Japan

- 25% of its people are aged 65 or over
- By 2040, this ratio is estimated to rise to 36%
- Public pension benefits comprise 68.5% of elderly household income

- Japan has world’s largest public pension funds recently started allocating to foreign asset classes and alternative investments to boost returns
- Other asset owners are also seeking to diversify their investments in search of higher rates of return

“If the corporate tax rate could be reduced to around 20% in the Special Economic Zone, Tokyo could be very competitive to Hong Kong and Singapore.”

“Personal income tax is a critical concern. I calculate the number of working days for transactions with Japan on a daily basis to avoid taxation.”

“Inheritance tax is a big issue for foreigners. I can’t die in Japan.”

“I have heard a lot about Tokyo Special Economic Zone (SEZ), but no one has made me understand SEZ from a tax perspective.”

Feedback from overseas asset managers (2/5)

It is hard to meet with asset owners such as pension funds if we visit for a short stay to decide on market entry to Japan. We are recommended to meet with Japanese trust banks first instead of asset owners. What exactly are roles of trust banks in Japan asset management industry?

More events to enable one to meet with a lot of investors at a time should be hosted – these are commonly held abroad.

The fact that asset managers need a license to simply enquire about the possibility of obtaining a discretionary mandate with a pension fund represents a high hurdle.

Even though manager entry programs offered by public pension funds exist, track record and outstanding AuM requirements are very high, so small and medium asset managers cannot easily access these.

Realistically, it is hard to gain a discretionary mandate without a professional recommendation from pension fund consultants or fund rating agencies.

Feedback from overseas asset managers (3/5)

“Understanding licensing requirements that differ from those at home consumes time, compounded by the fact that all rules are in Japanese.”

“Ambiguous requirements and differing interpretations of regulations are problematic and time-consuming.”

“A promotion desk should be set up in Tokyo similar to those provided by UK, Singapore and Hong Kong governmental authorities.”

“Information cannot be acquired via web and licenses cannot be applied from abroad, necessitating expensive travel to Japan”

“The process is too slow - whereas it takes only 2~3 months for license application in Hong Kong, in Japan it is 1~2 years.”

D Comfortable Living Environment

“I want to bring my children, but I am not sure what kind of financial assistance for education such as international school will be provided by the Japanese government.”

“I want to bring our maid and nanny with my family, but I am not sure if the Japanese government would issue visas for them.”

F Language assistance (In daily life)

“At least within the Special Economic Zone, English should be commonly used with no stress.”

“I am not sure what kind of English based medical support I can receive.”

Low Operating Costs

“Like business rules concerning Net Asset Value (NAV) calculations, many Japan specific rules exist; therefore, it is not possible to adopt our globally standardized systems or to use staff members in other countries.”

“Outsourcing for the compliance function is not permissible in Japan, but the cost of hiring is not affordable for small asset managers.”

“Requirements for minimum outsourcing arrangements are unclear.”

“In order to operate efficiently we want the authorities to construct a framework that allows outsourcing of middle and back office functions.”

Human Resources

“Very few bilingual staff familiar with the asset management business are available, and even if they are, it is too costly to hire them.”

“An educational program to develop future compliance officers would be a good focus for JIAM – there are not enough of them in Japan.”

“Showing Japanese asset managers how to improve their governance practices will have a positive impact on their people and performance.”

“There is a stigma against hedge funds in Japan as hedge funds have been negatively publicized”

“Although Japanese people are well-educated, life-time employment and withholding taxation have created Japanese financial illiteracy”
